Dinosaurs and Volcanoes Found on CDSA Campus

The children traveled back in time this week to learn what our world was like when dinosaurs roamed the Earth. They have enjoyed reading and talking about the different kinds of dinosaurs and using their imaginations to create their own version of the "land before time." High Touch High Tech came out with a hands on-minds on-learning experiment about volcanoes. The children became scientists as they helped mix the chemicals while learning about cylinders, graduated cylinders, and wafting. After all the chemicals were measured and poured we took our "volcanoes" outside and watched as they erupted. The teachers extended the learning back into the classroom while the children talked about volcanoes. Next week we will continue our dinosaur fun as we become paleontologists and go on a fossil and dinosaur dig.

High Touch High Tech's volcanoes make a big splash with primary and transitional students.
